Use this form to report travel expenses for commuting between home and a secondary place of work if you regularly perform employment-related duties in the same employer's primary and secondary places of business in different localities. Report the travel expenses for commuting between your home and primary place of work on form 1A. Travel expenses for commuting between a second home and secondary place of work in a secondary business location are also reported on form 1A.

Expenses arising from commuting to and from a secondary place of work are deductible from earned income, as expenses incurred in acquiring or maintaining income.

Do not attach any receipts or free-form clarifications to the form; place them somewhere for safekeeping. The Tax Administration will ask you for the receipts, if necessary. For further instructions, visit tax.fi.
